Senator Douglas on Squatter Sovereignty.

The "sneaking and perfidious," "astounding and criminally false" position of Mr.

Douglas on "squatter sovereignty," as stated in his Freeport speech—though, according to the words and terrible thunder of the Journal, and "never before announced by any politician of consequence in the country"—in fact, not a new doctrine, either in the mouth of Douglas himself, or of several of his eminent brethren of the South. Without referring to other occasions, he took pretty much the same ground

"since the Dred Scott decision," in his celebrated speech at Springfield, Illinois, on the 17th of June last year. He said, then, as all know, that—

"While the master's right to his slave in the Territory continues in full force, the guarantee of the Constitution cannot be construed to allow the people of a Territory to establish a permanent and exclusive government, and to exclude slavery, without the assent of Congress."

Mr. Douglas says at Freeport what he said at Springfield. The master's right to carry and hold his slaves in a Territory is virtually

"harren and worthless," if the settlers there do not choose to protect and enforce it. The security and establishment of slavery in any Territory must, after all, depend upon the prevailing sentiment and will of the sovereign people there—the decisions of the Supreme Court and all the police power of the federal authorities to the contrary notwithstanding.

"The institution" cannot, by any device or means whatever, be practically and actually planted and rooted on any soil, in opposition to the popular will of its settlers. The will of the majority, as expressed in the market house and on the rostrum, by the press and the legislature, practically does and will prevail, and rule on this as on every other subject, in said that this, or any other decision the Court may render, can, of itself, practically establish slavery as an institution in every or any territory, without reference to the soil, the climate, and the prevailing interests and wishes of its inhabitants. And herein, though some may not now deem it politic to say so, they may still agree with Mr. Douglas.

However much we may regret it, theoretic ally or practically viewed, constitutions, laws, and legal decisions are, as to any abiding efficiency or influence, practically a nullity in the country, except so far as they accord with the common sense and sentiments of the majority, with the people's understanding of their rights and duties, and of their private and public interests. Law-givers and judges here must ultimately bow to the prevailing will of the people; especially about any domestic question which they consider vital. We may perhaps a highly dangerous step. We may live to see even the Supreme Court of the United States re-organized, in order to popularize it.

Wherever the people of a sovereign or an inchoate State want to protect and perpetuate African slavery among themselves, whether they act right or wrong, they will pretty eventually do so, and lawfully, too, in spite of, though not in direct conflict with, all prevailing federal legislation and adjudication.

Wherever the people deem the establishment of that relation incompatible with their welfare and property, they will manage, somehow or other, to keep it out of their midst, or to get rid of it sooner or later, if already among them. We do not mean to say that the settlers, though opposed to slavery, would or should prohibit or abolish it, without regard to existing vested rights of property in slaves, without the consent of their owners, or without fully compensating them; or that, under the "Dred Scott" decision, they would have the right to abolish and exclude it, on even such conditions and by such means. But we do say that it cannot spread and flourish under the legislative protection and patronage of any

State or territory whose people do not want slave labor, and who call for free labor in its stead. While their legislation need not, and should not, conflict with any standing decision of the Supreme Court, or of the legislature, or of the courts, or of the people, they have the right to protect, to enforce, and to maintain, by all the powers of a sovereign State. But we do say that it cannot spread and flourish under

the legislative protection and patronage of any

State or territory whose people do not want

slave labor, and who call for free labor in its stead. While their legislation need not,

It was scarcely needful to remind our readers that the large sale of fashionable fancy jewelry will come off this morning (Tuesday) at 10 o'clock, at auction rooms of Messrs. S. G. Henry & Co. We are authorized to say that this is an entire new stock, just received direct from the manufacturers, and well worth the attention of the trade; and that it will be sold in liberal lots. There will also be added to the sale, 200 dozen cases, pocket-books, and fine and extra fine portmanteaus, received by express yesterday.

—Capt. A. C. Harig sent to the St. Louis Fair one of his combination locks, but it arrived too late to be entered for competition. It excited a great deal of remark, however; and one of the judges stated that, had it arrived in time, it would have received the premium.

Accident.—Yesterday, about 11 o'clock, a lot of 12 or 14 laborers were engaged in digging sand in a pit near the Spring Brewery, on the canal bank, one side of the pit caved in on them. One man, John Hines, was crushed under the falling mass, and one of his legs was broken above the knee. It is supposed amputation will be necessary to save his life. The others escaped without injury.

Theater.—Mr. Murdoch was greeted by a full, though not crowded, house. The School for Scandal was not the play to draw a crowd. Mr. M.'s Charles Surface was a picture, such as we seldom see in these days—true to the author's conception. This evening we have Hamlet.

A Friend.—Caroline Van Duser, who killed the newly-born infant of Mrs. Jane Howard, with whom she lived, at Troy, three years since, has been arrested at a New York den of prostitutes, and taken to Troy. It is alleged that Caroline entered the room, and snatching the child from the cradle, dashed its brains out upon the floor, after which she escaped. According to the Troy Times, this woman has been tried for causing the death of her own mother by personal violence. She has been very good looking, and is very dangerous.

Mechanics' Institute.—The fair of the Mechanics' Institute will open this evening in the Exhibition Building, corner of Fourth street and Broadway. The opening address will be delivered by T. S. Phillips, Esq.

We learn that nearly all the space for exhibitors has been engaged; if there are any intending to exhibit who have not yet selected space, they had better make haste, or they will find themselves ruled out.

Trotting Day at the South-Western Fair Grounds.—This comes on Monday, the 25th instant, the day before the commencement of the Kentucky State Fair. The track is now in complete order, and the gate on the Brownsville road, as well as that on the turnpike, has been ordered by the President to be opened for the admission of persons who wish to practice their horses before the day of the trial.

A great deal of curiosity was evinced yesterday by persons in the neighborhood of Court place to see some stones split by the workmen at the Court house.

We call attention to the law card of William W. & Selby Harney in another column. They are now prepared to make collections in the south and west, through their agents, without any additional expense to their clients.

The contested election case will be tried in the county court room on Thursday next before Judge Moore, Charles Thurston, and Squire Lynn.

The Chinese jugglers will give their second performance this evening, in Masonic Temple.

A couple of gentlemen had a slight difficulty in front of the Neal House, on Sunday. No particular damage done.

Nothing exciting in the city.

There had not been a single arrest up to 7 o'clock last evening.

Police Court.

MON. GEORGE W. JOHNSON, JUDGE.

Monday morning, court crowded as usual. The first case presented was for—Fighting.—Thomas Cochran and James McClear were presented in this charge. They were required to give their own bonds in $200 for three months. The next case presented was for—

A Felony.—Nellie alias Belle Parmenter (w. c.) was presented on this charge. She is nothing but a child, and was only held for her future good behavior. Bail $500 for three months. After these came the cases for—Drunkness and Disorderly Conduct.—The following persons were presented, Henry Holtenkamp, who, beside being drunk, committed an assault on E. Mann. He was required to give bail to answer, and for his future good conduct.

The next person was James Horan. Bail in $200 for three months.

Thomas and James Jamison were presented next, and on the additional charge of Stabling John Donovan. There was no proof of the stabling, so they were required to give bail to answer for an assault, and for future good conduct.

Another Felony.—George W. Johnston was presented for stealing a vest from Sproule & Masseyville. He was held to answer.

The New Orleans Picayune, of the 11th, says:—

We find but little change in the market to-day. There was no change in cotton, but not so in other commodities. Money markets are without any alteration. Prime paper is at 10 per cent, and is in demand.

The New York Evening Post, of the 10th, says:—

Money markets are still very dull. We learn, however, that indications of a recovery are to be seen in the movement of the market within the coming week. In France, some business is done at 2 1/2 per cent. Sixty day bills on New York run at 100 per cent discount. Sight is at 100 per cent, and is in demand. The bank rate is at 100 per cent, but is being offered at 100 per cent.

Man Beaten to Death in Madison County, Kentucky, by his Wife and her Paramour.

$500 Reward Offered for their Arrest.

We learn by passengers over the Covington & Lexington Railway last night, that a shocking murder took place at Tates Creek, in Madison county, Kentucky, on Wednesday evening last.

It appears that a man named Wade, and his wife Sarah Wade, have been living very unhappily together, on account of an alleged intimacy existing between Mrs. Wade and a man named William B. Margrave, alias Rice. On Wednesday evening, Wade returned home and found Margrave at his house. Wade demanded that he should absent himself and never again return. Mrs. Wade took sides with Margrave, and both commenced a tirade against Wade, who, in the latter replied, using very severe language. From high words the parties came to blows, and Mrs. Wade and Margrave, with barrel staves in their hands, beat Wade to death. The murderers left their victim lying on the floor, and packing up all the clothing they wanted, eloped to parts unknown. A colored boy who witnessed the conflict, gave the alarm, and the neighbors far and near were soon collected. Wade was weltering in a pool of blood, and was beaten and cut in a most shocking manner. Pursuit was made to the police of this city, but neither had been arrested at latest accounts. It is believed that the fugitives are in the vicinity of Tates Creek, where Mr. Wade was killed. A very worthy citizen, and Margrave regarded as a dangerous man; this being the third murder he has committed. We understand that the murderers have been traced to within thirty miles of Covington—Cin. Gaz., 11th.

THE GOLDEN SUNSET.

The golden sun in its interior aprons Smilingly looks down on the world below And with a happy smile, the golden sun Looks down on the world below.

What do you think of that? said an enthusiastic tourist to a bumpkin, who was looking at Niagara for the first time in his life.

"Well, there's a good deal of water; but I know a man in my neighborhood that's got a calf with five legs!"

"What do you think of that?" said an enthusiastic tourist to a bumpkin, who was looking at Niagara for the first time in his life.
